

Exchange the goods or the information

The unearthed artifacts indicates that the Jomon people prepared the things to make journey easy or obtained the information concerning with the destination.

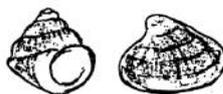

We can also consider that they gave the goods or the information to each other by connecting their villages beyond local areas.

Jomon people rowed across the sea.

They gave their special products to each other at the village in-between.

The things obtained in mountains were exchanged to those from the sea.